Total Energy USA, Houston, Texas 26-29 November, 2012

We are inviting a small group of UK renewable energy, clean technology and sustainability companies to participate in a programme of events at Total Energy USA. The inaugural event, held November 27-29, 2012 at the George R. Brown Convention Center in Houston, Texas, USA is expected to host thousands of industry delegates, including architects, builders, community leaders, developers, energy consultants, government, independent power producers, landowners, large energy users, media, oil and gas suppliers, power utilities, researchers and others.

Total Energy USA 2012, produced by VP International with partners from Technology Transition Corporation, Marketing Design Group, the City of Houston, the Greater Houston Partnership and the Houston Technology Center, is an innovative new annual conference and exposition that will assemble the full range of traditional and renewable energy industries for a comprehensive look at the overarching, integrated energy solutions needed to meet today's energy challenges. Total Energy USA provides an arena for professionals from across the energy sectors to explore the full range of cross-cutting issues, developments and opportunities that are shaping the total energy picture today and information buying choices for the future.
